THINGS TO KNOW

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT, REPORTER

I've taken a selfie. Or more like two, three, or ten in a row in order to get the best shot. We've all done it, right? But some people are taking the search for the perfect selfie to extremes by getting plastic surgery to match their filtered shots in real life, or to look better on their cell phone screens. Medical experts have dubbed this phenomenon Snapchat dysmorphia. Read more about what that really means inside and at metro.us.

COHEN UNDER INVESTIGATION FOR TAX FRAUD: WSJ

Federal prosecutors in New York are examining whether President Donald Trump's former lawyer Michael Cohen committed tax fraud in relation to his taxi-medallion business, The Wall Street Journal reported Tuesday. Cohen has not been charged with any crime. The Federal Bureau of Investigation seized documents and files as part of investigations by federal prosecutors in New York stemming from a referral by the U.S. special counsel's office, which is looking into possible coordination between Trump 2016 campaign aides and Russia. Moscow denies interfering in the U.S. election and Trump denies collusion by his campaign, describing the probe as a political witch hunt. Lanny Davis, an attorney for Cohen, said he couldn't comment. A spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office in Manhattan, which is handling the investigation, declined to comment. Federal authorities are assessing whether income from Cohen's taxi-medallion business was underreported in federal tax returns, according to the newspaper, citing one person familiar with the matter.

FORMER MLB PITCHER EXPECTED TO PLEAD GUILTY

Esteban Loaiza, a former pitcher who played for the Chicago White Sox and seven other teams, may plead guilty on Friday to cocaine trafficking charges at a U.S. District Court hearing in California, according to a court filing. Loaiza, 46, earlier this year pleaded not guilty to charges of possession with intent to sell cocaine, stemming from a February arrest in San Diego. Authorities found about 20 kilos (44 pounds) of cocaine in bags with his name on them, federal court records show. Loaiza's lawyer had requested that a trial scheduled to start on Friday be changed to a plea hearing for her client, the court records said. Defense attorney Janice Deaton offered no comment on Tuesday when reached by Reuters. A spokeswoman for San Diego federal prosecutors declined to discuss the potential plea deal, but said in an email that the statutory penalties for the current charge are mandatory minimum 10 years and maximum of life imprisonment. Loaiza, a journeyman who pitched for eight major league teams and most of them more than once between 1995 and 2008, was a two-time American League all star.

CHINA DENIES ENTRY TO WINNIE THE POOH FILM

4 Walt Disney Co.'s request to show "Christopher Robin," a movie that features the honey-loving bear Winnie the Pooh, has been denied by authorities in China, a source familiar with the matter said Tuesday. It is unclear why the Chinese government denied entry to the film. Chinese authorities do not provide reasons to Hollywood studios when they reject their movies, the source said. The government in Beijing has censored online images of Winnie the Pooh after some opponents likened the bear's appearance to President Xi Jinping and have used Pooh as a symbol of resistance. China, the world's second-largest film market, also limits the number of foreign-made films allowed into the country to 34 a year. It typically favors action-heavy blockbusters such as "Avengers: Infinity War" and "Black Panther," two of four Disney films that have played in China so far this year. In "Christopher Robin," the eponymous hero, now an adult, reunites with boyhood friend Winnie the Pooh and others such as Eeyore the donkey and Piglet.

FORMER CHIEF CLAIMS
ROLE IN DRONE ATTACK

5 A former Venezuelan municipal police chief and anti-government activist says he helped organize an operation to launch armed drones over a military rally on Saturday that President Nicolas Maduro has called an assassination attempt. In an interview, Salvatore Lucchese, a Venezuelan activist who was previously imprisoned for his role in past protests, told Reuters he orchestrated the attack with a loose association of anti-Maduro militants known generally in Venezuela as the "resistance." The "resistance" referred to by Lucchese is a diffuse collection of street activists, student organizers and former military officers. It has little formal structure, but is known in the country mostly for organizing protests in recent years in which demonstrators have clashed with police and soldiers. Reuters could not independently verify Lucchese's claims about the attack, in which drones flew over the rally in central Caracas. Explosives aboard the drones detonated, injuring seven military officers and sending attendees scurrying for cover. Lucchese described the incident as part of a sustained, armed effort against Maduro.

Kavanaugh's SCOTUS confirmation: The future of reproductive rights

The Center for Reproductive Rights weighs in on how Brett Kavanaugh could overturn the Supreme Court's precedent on what liberty means.

NIKKI M. MASCALI
nikki.mascali@metro.us

With the confirmation hearings for President Donald Trump's conservative Supreme Court nominee Brett Kavanaugh expected to begin next month, the future of Roe v. Wade and other rights hang in the balance.

Kavanaugh is Trump's second Supreme Court nomination, one that, if approved, would bring the president closer to making good on his campaign promise to overturn Roe v. Wade.

Amy Myrick of the Center for Reproductive Rights weighs in on how Brett Kavanaugh could overturn the Supreme Court's precedent on Roe v. Wade and other liberties. PROVIDED

Kavanaugh would replace retiring Justice Anthony Kennedy, who has served as a swing vote at critical times the 1973 landmark abortion rights case has been threatened. With his expected confirmation, the Center for Reproductive Rights said on its website that "we may now face the greatest risk to the future of reproductive rights in the United States."

Amy Myrick, staff attorney for judicial strategy at the Center for Reproductive Rights, decided about abortion rights of immigrant minors," Myrick said. "He decided it in a way that did not respect the right to abortion, and it raises the stakes and the importance of a complete vetting and him having to answer what does he really think liberty means."

What needs to happen in the forthcoming confirmation hearings for Brett Kavanaugh?

The Senate can't confirm somebody who hasn't demonstrated clearly and unequivocally that he or she supports the approach to the Constitution that has been used to find and protect the right to abortion and other kinds of fundamental liberties rights over time. We can't allow someone to skate by without making a clear statement about that like nominees have tried to do in the past. Nominees try to get out of talking about how they view constitutional interpretation, which is core to how somebody is going to serve as a justice. Those questions are completely legitimate and have to be answered before someone can get confirmed.

Is there a current justice who could be that critical swing vote? That's unknowable — every time the court is reconstituted, its approach changes, and the justices interact with each other and come to each issue anew every time it's before them. There's no way we can make predictions about that, but the court has said it cares — and should care — about precedent once it's been established as a core constitutional principle that people rely on.

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

“Don’t Get ANY Surgery Until You See This...”

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It’s Best “Treatment Formula” For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going to be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it’s complex. In other words, it’s not a simple, easy fix.

But I’m sure you already know that. Or you wouldn’t be reading this.

That’s the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It’s amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

While I can’t give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD “Treatment Formula” A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW...

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these “gel injections” without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patient. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here’s What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our “Treatment Formula.”

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what’s going on and what is your best course of action... step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what’s going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I’m out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

Snapchat dysmorphia: An unhealthy quest for obtaining the perfect selfie

According to BU researchers, people are turning to plastic surgery to change their appearance to match filtered social media images.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

Selfies, and the people who take lots of them, have long received criticism from those who think they reek of narcissism. Now a new set of critics has emerged: Medical experts argue those filters are leading to the rise of “Snapchat dysmorphia.”

The term has been swirling around the internet since it was used in a recent article published in the medical journal JAMA Facial Plastic Surgery.

Snapchat dysmorphia is causing people to seek out plastic surgery in the quest for the perfect selfie. PIXABAY

Researchers at the Boston Medical Center and Boston University School of Medicine are warning people about the phenomenon and the rise in plastic surgery, but what is Snapchat dysmorphia? Snapchat dysmorphia has patients “seeking out cosmetic surgery to look like filtered versions of themselves ... with fuller lips, bigger eyes or a thinner nose,” according to the JAMA article.

Just as celebrities and models have long set a standard for beauty, affecting those who wish to change how they look, Snapchat filters and features like Facetune — meant to smooth out your perceived imperfections — are doing the same.

But as these filtered images become the norm, authors say, Snapchat dysmorphia is taking a toll on people’s self-esteem.

Snapchat dysmorphia is related to body dysmorphia, a mental illness in which people obsessively focus on what they see as flaws in their appearance. It affects up to 2.4 percent of the population, according to the Anxiety and Depression Association of America, and it’s more than just not completely loving something about the way you look.

Like those with body dysmorphia who seek out plastic surgery, those with Snapchat dysmorphia are doing the same, according to the BU researchers.

The authors referenced studies that showed that teen girls who manipulated their photos were more concerned with their body appearance and that those with “dysmorphic body image” often seek out social media for validation on how attractive they are.

Snapchat dysphoria is also leading people to seek out plastic surgery so that they look better in their selfies specifically. Research has found that 55 percent of plastic surgeons report seeing patients who go under the knife in order to approve their appearance in selfies — up from 42 percent in 2015.

Factors like angling your phone higher or finding the best light may actually lead you to be unhappy with your regular appearance, according to the researchers. “The angle and close distance at which selfies are taken may distort facial dimensions and lead to dissatisfaction,” they wrote.

This is influencing the type of plastic surgery people choose. Before selfies skyrocketed in popularity, researchers say, the most common reason for those seeking rhinoplasty, aka a nose job, was because someone wanted to reduce the hump on the bridge of their nose.

Now the most common reason is because people are seeking “nasal and facial” symmetry, per the paper. Requests for hair transplants and eyelid surgical procedures have also increased.

But experts say altering your appearance isn’t the best path. A filtered selfie is an “unattainable look,” and wanting to make that come to life off of their screen is “blurring the line of reality and fantasy for these patients.”

What would you give up to end climate change?

A new survey found people would give up Trump, their sports team, showers and voting freedom before their cellphones to stop climate change.

NIKKI M. MASCALI

Sure, you may be worried about how climate change is affecting our planet, but what are you willing to sacrifice to save it? According to a new survey from GeekWrapped, many respondents would give up daily showers, Donald Trump's presidency and pizza before handing over their cellphones.

"Life is all about sacrifices big and small, but that doesn't make the process any easier," the study's authors wrote. "Our respondents revealed one core takeaway: People are far less likely to sacrifice something that affects them on a deeply personal level, such as their ability to hear or see, the two things that people were least willing to give up in favor of a healthy environment."

GeekWrapped surveyed more than 1,000 people between the ages of 18 and 78 about climate change. Eighty-five percent of all respondents said the environment was important to them.

Climate change and politics
Eighty-eight percent of Democrats said the environment is important, while 87 percent of independents and 81 percent of Republicans agreed.

Climate change by generation
Eighty-five percent of millennials cited the environment as a concern, while 85 percent of Gen-Xers and 81 percent of baby boomers felt the same.

Climate change is the No. 1 environmental concern mental issues facing the planet, climate change was No. 1 with 29 percent of GeekWrapped's respondents. Global warming ranked second at 22 percent, followed by water pollution (12 percent) and air pollution (11 percent).

Broken down by political affiliation, climate change remained the top concern for Democrats and independents, but Republicans said water pollution was their biggest worry.

The Paris Agreement
Overall, 58 percent of respondents think the U.S. should rejoin the Paris

Agreement, and 60 percent of both millennials and Gen-Xers agree. Party-wise, 78 percent of Democrats and 57 percent of independents think we should rejoin, while 34 percent of Republicans think we should not.

Top ways people protect the environment
Recycling is the No. 1 way respondents reduce their carbon footprint, both by generation and by political affiliation. While reusable shopping bags and water bottles and energy-efficient products ranked high for both demographics, ceasing use of paper and plastic products and biking instead of driving were among both's bottom three.

For climate change I would sacrifice ...

Across all generations, overall respondents — as well as Democrats and independents — were willing to give up both Donald Trump and his presidency before anything else. The top sacrifice for Republicans was alcohol, with social media a close second.

Cellphones ranked roughly in the 30 percentile for all demographics save for Republicans.

New effort will help incarcerated individuals register to vote in NYC

Initiative aims to increase access to those in jails on misdemeanor charges.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

New York City tends to have a pretty low voter turnout, but now Mayor Bill de Blasio is hoping to get more people to vote by bringing voter registration forms to those prisoners in New York jails.

The mayor announced Tuesday that officials are launching a voter registration and information campaign so incarcerated people can exercise their right to vote.

and absentee ballots to incarcerated New Yorkers, bypassing the jail mailing system, officials said, in order to ensure the timely delivery of paperwork.

Until now, voter registration forms and absentee ballots were processed with other outgoing mail in jails. This mail is subject to security procedures, per the city, that may have "inadvertently caused missed deadlines."

But now, when incarcerated individuals fills out their forms to vote in New York City, they will submit them directly to staff who ensure that the forms are delivered to the Board of Elections quickly.

There are many incarcerated individuals

"Voting is a fundamental right of all Americans, as is access to it."

Council Member Keith Powers

"Voting access must be expanded and protected in our city. That applies to everyone, including people in custody," de Blasio said in a statement. "This initiative will help more incarcerated New Yorkers participate in our democracy and have their voices heard."

The effort is a partnership with the Department of Correction, the Legal Aid Society and the Campaign Finance Board.

City officials will pick up and deliver voter-registration forms in city jails who are eligible to vote, officials said. However, you cannot vote in if you are in prison for a felony charge.

"Voting is a fundamental right of all Americans, as is access to it," said Council Member Keith Powers, chair of the Committee on Criminal Justice, in a statement. "Making it easier for those in custody of our city jails to vote — many of whom have not been convicted — shows that every voice counts, because they do."

Why Haven't Senior Homeowners Been Told These Facts?

Keep reading if you own a home in the U.S. and were born before 1955.

It's a well-known fact that for many senior citizens in the U.S. their home is their single biggest asset, often accounting for more than 50% of their total net worth.

Yet, according to new statistics from the mortgage industry, senior homeowners in the U.S. are now sitting on more than 6.1 trillion dollars of unused home equity.¹ With people now living longer than ever before and home prices back up again, ignoring this "hidden wealth" may prove to be short sighted.

All things considered, it's not surprising that more than a million homeowners have already used a government-insured Home Equity Conversion Mortgage or "HECM" loan to turn their home equity into extra cash for retirement.

However, today, there are still millions of eligible homeowners who could benefit from this FHA-insured loan but may simply not be aware of this "retirement secret."

Some homeowners think HECM loans sound "too good to be true." After all, you get the cash you need out of your home but you have no more monthly mortgage payments.

NO MONTHLY MORTGAGE PAYMENTS?² EXTRA CASH?

It's a fact: no monthly mortgage payments are required with a government-insured HECM loan;² however the homeowners are still responsible for paying for the maintenance of their home, property taxes, homeowner's insurance and, if required, their HOA fees.

Another fact many are not aware of is that HECM reverse mortgages first took hold when President Reagan signed the FHA Reverse Mortgage Bill into law 29 years ago in order to help senior citizens remain in their homes.

Today, HECM loans are simply an effective way for homeowners 62 and older to get the extra cash they need to enjoy retirement.

Although today's HECM loans have been improved to provide even greater financial protection for homeowners, there are still many misconceptions.

For example, a lot of people mistakenly believe the home must be paid off in full in order to qualify for a HECM loan, which is not the case. In fact, one key advantage of a HECM is that the proceeds will first be used to pay off any existing liens on the property, which frees up cash flow, a huge blessing for seniors living on a fixed income. Unfortunately, many senior homeowners who might be better off with HECM loan don't even bother to get more information because of rumors they've heard.

That's a shame because HECM loans are helping many senior homeowners live a better life.

In fact, a recent survey by American Advisors Group (AAG), the nation's number one HECM lender, found that over 90% of their clients are satisfied with their loans.

While these special loans are not for everyone, they can be a real lifesaver for senior homeowners.

FACT: In 1988, President Reagan signed an FHA bill that put HECM loans into law.

The cash from a HECM loan can be used for any purpose. Many people use the money to save on interest charges by paying off credit cards or other high-interest loans. Other common uses include making home improvements, paying off medical bills or helping other family members. Some people simply need the extra cash for everyday expenses while others are now using it as a "safety net" for financial emergencies.

If you're a homeowner age 62 or older, you owe it to yourself to learn more so that you can make an informed decision. Homeowners who are interested in learning more can request a free 2018 HECM loan Information Kit and free Educational DVD by calling American Advisors Group toll-free at 1-800-791-1598.

At no cost or obligation, the professionals at AAG can help you find out if you qualify and also answer common questions such as:

1. What's the government's role?
2. How much money might I get?
3. Who owns the home after I take out a HECM loan?

You may be pleasantly surprised by what you discover when you call AAG for more information today.

¹Source: <http://reversmortgagedaily.com/2016/06/21/seniors-home-equity-grows-to-6-trillion-reverse-mortgage-opportunity>. ²If you qualify and your loan is approved, a Home Equity Conversion Mortgage (HECM) must pay off any existing mortgage(s). With a HECM loan, no monthly mortgage payment is required. A HECM increases the principal mortgage loan amount and decreases home equity (it is a negative amortization loan). AAG works with other lenders and financial institutions that offer HECMs. To process your request for a loan, AAG may forward your contact information to such lenders for your consideration of HECM programs that they offer. When the loan is due and payable, some or all of the equity in the property no longer belongs to borrowers, who may need to sell the home or otherwise repay the loan with interest from other proceeds. AAG charges an origination fee, mortgage insurance premium, closing costs and servicing fees (added to the balance of the loan). The balance of the loan grows over time and AAG charges interest on the balance. Interest is not tax-deductible until the loan is partially or fully repaid. Borrowers are responsible for paying property taxes and homeowner's insurance (which may be substantial). We do not establish an escrow account for disbursements of these payments. A set-aside account can be set up to pay taxes and insurance and may be required in some cases. Borrowers must occupy home as their primary residence and pay for ongoing maintenance; otherwise the loan becomes due and payable. The loan also becomes due and payable when the last borrower, or eligible non-borrowing surviving spouse, dies, sells the home, permanently moves out, defaults on taxes or insurance payments, or does not otherwise comply with the loan terms. American Advisors Group (AAG) is headquartered at 3800 W. Chapman Ave., 3rd & 7th Floors, Orange CA, 92868. Rams, Saints set to debut first male cheerleaders in NFL

GETTY IMAGES

History will be made this coming football season when the first NFL male cheerleaders will perform on the sidelines during a football game.

The New Orleans Saints and the Los Angeles Rams announced they will have male NFL cheerleaders performing on their cheerleading team for the first time.

Professional dancers Quinton Peron and Napoleon Jinnies both made the Los Angeles Rams cheerleader squad back in March and have been preparing for the upcoming season, according to CNN.

"Still can't believe I'm one of the first males in history to be a pro NFL cheerleader! Everyone's support and love has been insane! Thank you and GO RAMS" Jinnies tweeted when he made the team.

Other teams such as the Indianapolis Colts and the Baltimore Ravens have men who perform stunts with the female cheerleaders, but Peron and Jinnies will be the first male cheerleaders to ever dance and perform the same routines alongside their teammates.

Peron and Jinnies, two dancers from California, were among the 76 finalists who auditioned for the Rams cheerleading squad. The two dancers have been sharing updates about their journey becoming Rams cheerleaders on Twitter and Instagram.

CNN noted that Peron and Jinnies' efforts inspired 25-year-old dancer Jesse Hernandez to try out for the New Orleans Saints Saintstations team. The Sun Herald reported that his mother, Tracey Hernandez, heard the news about Peron and Jinnies becoming cheerleaders for the Los Angeles Rams and sent him a link to the story encouraging him to try out for the team.

"It's your time to shine," Hernandez wrote.

Hernandez, a Louisiana native, tried out for the Saintstations team in April and made the team, becoming the first NFL male cheerleader to make the Saintstations.

Every day is an adventure on the subway. But if the MTA can't prevent incidents, it should at least give good advice to stranded passengers. That's not what happened Tuesday morning. The emergency brake was activated on a Manhattan-bound J train at Bowery shortly before 8:15 a.m. For some reason, this shut down J traffic in both directions, which begs its own questions. But the real problem is the advice of the MTA's Twitter account @NYCT-Subway: "As an alternative, you can take the A, C, E or M train." Making it obvious that whoever was running the account knows nothing about the J train. There are few people who are close enough to any of those other lines to consider taking a different train, even if they saw that tweet before swiping their Metrocards. But if the tweet was meant for commuters already swiped in and waiting at J stations, it would take this column three times over to describe how wrong these service recommendations are. We're all used to bad service, but bad advice to avoid it is just insult to injury.

or spend time with friends and family instead," says Skey. It may seem harsh, but with as competitive and time-consuming as blogging can be — it's a full-time job and then some — you've got to be honest with yourself. Why is a blog still important?

"True loyalty requires deep engagement from an audience and deep commitment from a content creator," says Skey. Photos on Instagram are great, but people hunger for the story behind them; same for videos on YouTube. Your blog is the way to give these carefully edited snippets of life context and, as Skey puts it, "depth of perspective."

Do your homework and resist temptation

To build an audience, they have to be able to find your blog in ways other than stumbling across it. The biggest mistake bloggers make when starting out is not doing their homework: It's not sexy or fun, but you've got to get familiar with search engine optimization, tagging and learn the naming conventions of your field.

once. Something that takes up way more time than anyone on social media necessarily expects is replying to fans and community members. Think of everything you post as the beginning of a conversation.

Remember that when it comes to potential advertisers, you'll be judged not just on reach but also on the quality of your engagement: as in the depth of interaction with your audience. Be diligent, and if you can build a monthly audience of over 100,000 people, you can start thinking about making a living off your blog.

Don't let being older stop you

Social media can feel like a very young space, but women who aren't in their 20s shouldn't feel intimidated. Being genuine is so important when it comes to building your brand, so Skey advises sharing your honest experiences, and your audience will find you. "Most of our top bloggers write about the things they love, and every experience with a new recipe or workout regimen, or adventure with family, represents great fodder for their blog."

Posting is just the beginning

Think of running a blog as tending to a garden. Once you've planted your seeds or plants, those plants often can't be left alone — and neither can your posts

- My toenails are streaked, discolored and thickened.
- The sides of my toenails dig into the skin and hurt.
- I have a large bump behind my big toe (or little toe) which is always red.
- I get an extremely painful "corner" in the area of my third and fourth toes when wearing shoes.
- My toes aren't straight—they are all cocked-up, bent and hurt.
- I have painful calluses on the ball of my foot which keep building up.
- I have corns on my toes which get thick no matter what shoe size I wear.
- The bottom of my feet hurt all day, but it's worse when I step out of bed in the morning.
- I have cramps in my legs which always happen when I walk the same distance.
- My ankles are swollen most of the time.
- My feet are always dry and itchy—sometimes they itch.
- My feet just hurt all over when I stand or walk a lot.
- I have numbness, burning, infection, persistent pain, skin rash, or open sores.

Deadpool wants you to Be Your Best Selfie

An Instagram gallery isn't the "Deadpool 2" home video tie-in we expected, but it's probably the one we deserve. After dancing with Celine Dion, Deadpool's next move is coming to New York to open The Deadpool and Friends' Believe in Your Selfie Museum in the West Village (what, SoHo was too cool?) for four days of "super duper photo ops."

The winning combination of wholesome and perverse that is Wade Wilson will surely make for an interesting experience through the nine galleries of the pop-up, open Aug. 8-11 at Industria Studio 10 (356 W. 12th St.)

Deadpool and Friends' Believe in Your Selfie Museum is dedicated to "some of the Merc with a Mouth's favorite things." These include unicorns and rainbows, his short-lived but much-loved X-Force team and even a chance to see what you would look like with a pair of freakishly small toddler legs.

And because what Deadpool really loves is his giant real-life super-powered Jiminy Cricket, visitors will be able to jump into the "Colossus' big, shiny foam pit." If you know Deadpool, you know what that actually means.

The Deadpool and Friends' Believe in Your Selfie Museum tickets are free; hours are from noon-8 p.m. on Aug. 8-9 and noon-9 p.m. on Aug. 10-11. Admission is very limited and you must be 18 or older; register for a timeslot on Eventbrite. There will be a standby line, too. EVA KIS

"Insatiable" makes its debut on Friday. ELIZA MORSE/NETFLIX

Alyssa Milano talks 'Insatiable' and the challenges of dark comedy

The "Charmed" actress reflects on her expansive television career and what the future holds.

ANDREW HUSBAND
letters@metro.us

In the controversial new Netflix series "Insatiable," Alyssa Milano plays Coralee, a would-be socialite who finds herself in the crosshairs of a vengeful girl played by Debby Ryan. Fans more familiar with her work in "Charmed" may think it a departure, but with credits as varied as "Who's the Boss?" and "My Name Is Earl," Milano's acting resume is ripe for a show precisely like this.

"It's something that I really enjoy doing. I find it to be much more of a challenge to do comedy, and to be able to find comedy within a character," she explains. "I've been acting now for 35 years, so I look for things that I feel will challenge me. It's also a big part of who I am as a person."

The 45-year-old performer ties her desire to do comedy, especially the dark comedy espoused by "Insatiable," to her #MeToo and Equal Rights Amendment activism as well.

"I think we've all experienced a tragedy that has been relieved by the giggles at some point in our lives. I look at it as a nervous-system reboot," says Milano. "I think that this show's comedy, and comedy across the board, really stems from a nervous system reboot. It can be so dark, and we are touching on such important thematic issues, that it needs to have those funny moments as a reprieve. Moments where you can breathe. These are the roles that I really dig playing. There's something attractive about playing things that surprise people."

She goes on to compare working on "Insatiable" with her recent experience on "Wet Hot American Summer: 10 Years Later," in which she played the seemingly murderous nanny Renata. Milano's comparison, of course, rests on both series' commitment to dark comedy, but it also ties to the "safety net" their respective creators employ for the cast.

"'Insatiable' was great because I was able to take risks. Lauren Gussis was such an incredible safety net, and so was David Wain on 'Wet Hot,'" she says. "You can look at people David and Michael Ian Black and Adam Scott and be too scared to be funny, but what all great comedy showrunners and directors have in common is an ability to make you feel like you're the funniest person in the room. That safety net really enables you to take more risks. That's what David was able to do for me with 'Wet Hot,' and what Lauren was able to do with 'Insatiable.'"

"Coralee can definitely straddle that line of being over the top," adds Milano, "and I think that at my best, there are moments where I succeeded and moments where I didn't. Either way, Lauren was always there. She and the 'Insatiable' team were always there to help me ground Coralee. As long as you can feel that groundedness, then it's possible to make a character like Coralee believable in a sea of madness."

"'Insatiable' debuts Friday on Netflix."

Knicks trailing Celtics as favorites to land Kyrie

The sports gambling world has drafted odds on where the superstar point guard might end up next year.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

We're still months away from tipping off the 2018-19 season, but a loaded free agent class next summer including star point guard Kyrie Irving has many around the NBA keeping an eye on July.

The Boston Celtics point guard is not committing his long-term future to the team that traded for him last year, the 26-year-old shockingly asking to be shipped away from the Cleveland Cavaliers after six years.

With his contract expiring at the end of this upcoming season, Irving is slated to become one of the most highly-coveted free agents of a summer that could also see Kawhi Leonard, Klay Thompson and Kevin Durant hit the market as well.

Irving is one of the most dynamic point guards in the game, blending an arsenal of ball-handling skills with smooth finishing. The five-time All-Star saw his 2017-18 season shortened to just 60 games due to injury, but he was still able to average 24.4 and 5.1 assists per game.

The prospect of his availability has already put the league on notice as teams are positioning themselves to offer big contracts in 2019, including both New York teams in the Knicks and Brooklyn Nets.

It looks as though the sports gambling world is preparing for the Irving sweepstakes, too, as BookMaker released its odds on where Irving will be playing next season (see right side of page).

Boston is still the favorite to retain Irving next year and it's easy to see why. As the class of the Eastern Conference, the Celtics are slated for a serious championship run in 2018-19 as the team is expected to be fully healthy, finally uniting Irving and Jayson Tatum with Gordon Hayward.

With LeBron James out of the East, they along with the Philadelphia 76ers are expected to represent the conference in the NBA Finals, though the Golden State Warriors are expected to continue their reign as kings of the league.

But the Knicks have long been linked with Irving since his trade request from Cleveland.

Growing up in New Jersey just minutes away from Madison Square Garden, it is believed that he wants to make his way back to the Big Apple to help turn around the Knicks culture.

It's a big ask considering the Knicks have been irrelevant for the better part of the last two decades. However, they are freeing up space for some max deals to bring in superstar talent alongside Kristaps Porzingis and possibly rookie Kevin Knox, who electrified the NBA during the Summer League.

The Nets provide another homecoming option for Irving as the Brooklynites are finally trending in the right direction after being gutted by the Paul Pierce and Kevin Garnett trade in 2013. Brooklyn is slated to have two max-salary slots to offer and thus would be poised for its best stretch since moving from New Jersey.

Struggling Sev meets ChiSox

Yankees ace Severino looks to get back on track tonight vs. Chicago.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

New York Yankees ace Luis Severino has not been performing anywhere near his title recently.

Following a gem against the Boston Red Sox on Jul. 1 in which he allowed just two hits over 6.2 innings, the 24-year-old was a serious contender for the American League Cy Young Award after improving his record to 13-2 with a minuscule 1.98 ERA.

His arm alone provided enough hope for some that the Yankees could get by with a lack of depth within the starting rotation, though Masahiro Tanaka, CC Sabathia and Sonny Gray were inconsistent and for the latter, flat-out struggling in 2018.

With a potent of

Luis Severino has had some trouble these past six weeks. GETTY IMAGES

fense, it might have been enough. But Severino has hit a speed bump in his Cy Young campaign and it's been a big one.

Over his last five starts, Severino is 1-3 with an 8.28 ERA while allowing 40 hits and 25 innings of work.

The average of eight hits per outing over his last five is almost double the number of his first 18 starts in 2018 as he was allowing an average of 4.6 hits per appearance.

It's raised his ERA to 3.08 though he still leads the American League with 14 wins.

His dip in play only added stress to the Yankees need to add pitching help, which Brian Cashman was able to do at the trade deadline by bringing in J.A. Happ and Lance Lynn.

Severino and the Yankees though can't really pinpoint anything major that the ace is doing wrong during this down stretch.

"I still feel good," Severino said last week (h/t Randy Miller, NJ.com). "I watched a little film this week, but I didn't see anything different from the first half, so I think it was just a few bad starts. That's what I'm hoping."

With hopes of the American League East title taking a huge hit after being swept by the Red Sox in a four-game series over the weekend, the Yankees need Severino to regain his form in order to keep the team perched in the postseason conversation.

New York's lead for the top AL Wild Card spot has been halved from six games over the Oakland Athletics and Seattle Mariners on Aug. 1 to just three entering Tuesday night.

Looking to get back on track, Severino will be facing a Chicago White Sox team on Wednesday night that is the third-worst in baseball.

With an offense that is averaging just 4.07 runs per game this year, the Pale Hosers don't provide much of a threat to him.

This will be the first time the righty faces Chicago this year, though this is a team he hasn't had overwhelming success against. In four career starts, he is 1-2 with a 4.18 ERA.
